School Segregation in Western North Carolina Feb 26 2021 Although African Americans make up a small portion of the population of western North Carolina, they have contributed much to the area's physical and cultural landscape. enlightening study surveys the region's segregated black schools from Reconstruction through integration and struggles, achievements, and ultimate victory of a unified community intent on achieving an adequate education for children. The book documents the events that initially brought blacks into Appalachia, early efforts to educate blacks, the movement to acquire and improve schools, and the long process of desegregation. Personnel issues, curriculum, extracurricular activities, sports, consolidation, and construction also receive attention. Featuring commentary from students, teachers and parents, this work weighs the value and achievement of rural segregated black schools and their significance for educators today.

An Answered Prayer Dec 27 2020 This book is about a couple's struggle with melanoma stage IV cancer. Bobs cancer was discovered during an unrelated chest x-ray looking for signs of work-related mesophilioma. Unable to do a biopsy, we had two suspicious spots removed from his right lung. In January of 2012, after the thoracic surgery, we were given the news that Bobs spots were melanoma. We naively assumed they had caught it early since Bob had no symptoms or discomfort, but once melanoma shows up inside the body, it is stage IV. I have written about the year we lived with the complications of cancer until Bobs death in 2013.
